It is very seldom that the APPEAL pulls a doubled barreled editorial on any contemporary, but in this instance the circumstance warrants it. According to the two paragraphs at the head of this column, when the plan of having a square primary was supposed to have been beaten it was Sam Davis' plan, but when it is successful it is George Thaxter's. The editor of the Ar-PEAL was the first one to suggest and work this plan, [see Tribune of September 17 | and don't propose to be robbed of the honor of laboring for clean primaries in Ormsby and at the same time extends his thanks to Mr. Thaxter for aiding him in the matter. The principle work however, was the solid pressure of public opinion which demanded a fair, square deal.

The method by which the Crawford primaries are to be conducted next Saturday is a plan which gives the best of satisfaction to the mass of Republican voters in Ormsby county, and the APPEAL is certain that the people will be so well pleased with it, that in future it will come into general use.

It is one of those things which has to be tried before its real virtues can be ascertained or appreci-

The Crawford primary run here several years ago had both its letter and spirit violated by cliques and combinations running separate tickets, and the man whe could peddle the tickets the fastest, won. Moved and carried that only one On that occasion the editor of the APPEAL was running for the unsalaried office of School Trustee, and one of the "combine" locked his tickets up in a safe, where they remained all day.

This year the editor of the Ar-PEAL has labored hard to have a ance of the candidates will be along

Several weeks ago, when it was known that the editor of this journal contemplated running for the Assembly, he was charged with being about to consummate a series of political jobs, which would in some way blotch the heretofere unspotted field of primary politics in Ormsby.

The political virgins of Carson, and the individuals who had been packing Conventions, handling primaries and superintending slate factories ever since they were old enough to vote, shook their heads at the mention of the writer's candidacy, and said they feared the people would not endorse a man who had ever been implicated in helping to make slates or connubiate in Conventions.

The APPEAL concluded about this time to look out for jobs, and when it heard of candidates who were confidently telling their friends that they were "all fixed" and "on the slate," it occurred to us that if politics were getting so everlastingly pure in this county, that a nice little Sunday school Crawford primary would be just the thing to trouble and cause a weak man to he nominated. The solicitude of some of these people at the prospect of a job was even apparent next morning, but the majority of the candidates finally concluded, along with the APPEAL, that a good, fair, square primary need hurt no one who liked fair and square politics at primaries, signed the pledge printed in yesterday's paper and the rest fell in line.

The APPEAL is getting a little wearied of being made a scape goat for all the sly transgressions against political morality in this

When men have been sold out, humbugged and beaten in Conventions and primaries in Ormsby it may be all very well for the guthors of their defeat to tell them confidently that it is "one of Sam Davis' jobs," but this game cannot be successfully worked this year, as the Appeal slate takes in every candidate and then turns the slate over to the public to run.

The politics of the primary next Saturday will be as pure as the driven, drifted snow, and enough of this kind of parity to necessitate running a tunnel through to the Curry Engine House in order to pry open the polls.

Sincerely speaking the plan of the primary is guarded by such restrictions that the public alone are masters of the situation and the absolute dictators of the ticket, as the public always should be in a primary election.

If there is a single loop hole for fraud, slate or combinations that any Republican voter can think of a plan to stop, his suggestion, if sent to this paper will be published.

The APPEAL is looking for an absolutely untrammelled expression of opinion of the voters and this is bound in the end to result in party unity, the obliteration of Mugwumpery and a majority of 300 for Harrison, Morton, Bartine and Murphy in Ormsby county.
